SUSTAINABILITY

WDT is starting a Controlled Environment Agriculture program.

The Environmental Engineering Technician - Controlled Environment Agriculture (CEA) program is designed to prepare students for work in the exciting and growing field of controlled environment agriculture. The EAT, SD (Education and Training in Sustainability and Development) Greenhouse Project will benefit students while working towards solving local food insecurity.

What is Aquaponics?

How does it work?

Aquaponics is a synergistic food production platform that combines techniques in aquaculture and hydroponics to simultaneously raise edible plants and fish.

What are the benefits?

This recycling eliminates the need for nutrient fertilizers and yields organic produce.

Why does WDT need a greenhouse?

In order to minimize energy input, commercial aquaponics units are generally housed in a greenhouse-style facility. As a continuation of these successes, we propose expanding our EAT, SD project toward community-level testing. For this proposed project, a “proof-of-concept” teaching greenhouse will be constructed to house our existing aquaponics systems.
